Jg Ballard

James Graham Ballard was an English novelist, short story writer, and essayist who first became associated with the New Wave of science fiction for his post-apocalyptic novels such as The Drowned World. In the late 1960s, he produced a variety of experimental short stories, such as those collected in the controversial The Atrocity Exhibition. In the mid 1970s, Ballard published several novels, among them the highly controversial Crash, a story about symphorophilia and car crash fetishism, and Hi

High-Rise (novel) - Wikipedia

No contemporary British writer captures our malaise better than does J. G. Ballard. In a writing career dating back half a century now, he has explored with acuity, from the aerie of his respectable suburban home outside London, the anxieties of modern existence—of what he calls the marriage of reason and nightmare.

Crash by J.G. Ballard

J.G. Ballard has constructed a parabolic tale (vaguely reminiscent of William Golding's "Lord of the Flies"), in which the characters, apparently driven by the consuming sterility of their mechanized Shangri-La, revert to their most primitive qualities. But unlike the situation in the Golding book -- where setting and characterization make the ...
